Location: Salamanca

i BETA

The posh yet beguiling Villa Magna relaunched as a Rosewood property on the swank Paseo de la Castellana in 2021, and if the daily gathering of cosmopolitan guests and well-coiffed residents in the sublime, chocolate-colored lounge spaces is any indication, a perfect pairing was born. Although opulence abounds, common areas inhabit a subdued, open-plan setting with plush seating and ambient lighting that begets visitors to lounge and linger. The Sense spa offers innovative hair treatments and a standout Turkish marble hammam. At meal times, guests can choose between Flor y Nata's traditional afternoon tea, grilled Spanish cuisine at Las Brasas de Castellana, Michelin-star chef Jesús Sánchez's signature Cantabrian cuisine at Amós, or light tapas and cocktails at Tarde.O—the latter three offering stunning al fresco seating options.

Relaxed luxury can be found in the property's spacious rooms, which feature white interiors and linens offset by headboard feature walls in greens, grays, or reds, king-sized beds, lacquer-trimmed furnishings, marble baths and dark wood chevron-patterned flooring with matching monochrome rugs. For the ultimate splurge, reserve one of the top signature houses, Salamanca or Anglada—two mammoth modern residences that offer wrap-around terraces and all the creature comforts.

 BETA

The spectacular bi-level lobby of the Four Seasons Madrid, with its neutral-hued furnishings and eye-catching curated artwork, exudes understated elegance. Built within seven classic buildings seamlessly melded together, the hotel houses a high-end shopping gallery, an expansive wellness area and 200 elegantly adorned rooms and 22 residences, many with unique elements that make extended stays feel more home than away. At Michelin-star chef Dani Garcia's namesake Dani, elevated Andalusian cuisine complements the brasserie-style setting. Isa Restaurant and Cocktail Bar offers award-winning mixology and an amalgam of Mediterranean and Asian flavors while people-watching, art stalking (the hotel has over 1,500 pieces) and sweet snacks are the order of the day at the fabulous El Patio lobby bar.

Rounding out the extravagant offerings, spa services include a fitness center, hair salon, glass-covered heated and cold water pools, eight plush treatment rooms and a gold-dusted relaxation area. Indulge in the 60-minute El Retiro treatment, a de-stressing, deep-tissue massage journey that includes a foot-washing ritual, personalized pressure and a choice of oil scents and sounds, followed by a mini-slumber in the cocoon-like relaxation room.

ⓘ BETA

Palacio de Atocha, the one-time lavish home of a high-ranking navy official, is now a retro-modern 34-room boutique stay in Madrid's literary district, Las Letras. The building, constructed in 1852, retains glamorous vintage touches: a winding staircase, a granite garden fountain, wrought-iron courtyard detailing and the former carriage entrance, which mixes curiously well with the neon signage and contemporary artwork sprinkled around the premises. The restaurant, El Patio de Atocha, serves a creative fusion of international cuisines and regional products in an airy, blue canopy space with views of the property's chic pool and garden area. For local flavors, try the El 34 tavern next to the entrance, offering local meats, tapas, and cheese served with wine or the denizen favorite, vermut.

The bedrooms at Palacio de Atocha offer a real taste of palatial living: high ceilings, unique layouts, roomy beds, antique moldings, modish velvet furnishings and wall covers and black and white marble baths in rooms ranging from a generous 366 square feet to a monumental 1120 square feet. For special occasions, we suggest booking the CoolSuite, a top-floor tower room boasting sweeping terrace views, a large bath with duo shower heads, a stylish living room, and a private outdoor hot tub.

Family-run since its inception in 2002, Madrid's industrial-hip 7 Islas Hotel combines creativity, craft cocktails and a plant-infused patio in a trendy gallery-style reception area in the urban art enclave of Malasaña. The hotel's curated artwork rotates every few months, though one piece from every exhibition becomes part of its burgeoning private collection. The 7 Kitchen & Bar serves Mediterranean bites with a twist and made-to-measure artisan cocktails.

Accommodations, from cozy single-use Easy rooms to penthouse suites with luxe terraces and yoga kits, share a clean, minimalist aesthetic comprising natural wood floors, metal trunk storage, printed throw rugs, and weaved leather and metal headboards. All rooms feature minibars with artisan products, quality bedding, biodegradable Malin+ Goetz amenities and full bar menu room service for an exceptional homestay at a competitive price.

residence-turned-luxe-hotel in Madrid's quiet Chamberí district. The property rests on three buildings surrounded by enchanting manicured gardens with robust trees, wrought-iron and marble patio sets with fringed parasols—the perfect spot for a magical afternoon promenade and tete-a-tete with refreshments. High-ceilinged antique-filled banquets and sitting rooms, each more striking than the next, occupy the lounge area, while room names such as The Red Room match their themes. After drinks at La Coctelería bar, guests can choose between the refined La Biblioteca restaurant, the former library featuring head-to-heel bookshelves, Gresca, an ornate Madrid society hotspot or the charming garden terrace when the weather warms.

Bedrooms, split between the palace, former stables, and the annex, are a touch more modern, with grey and pewter tones, ultra-luxe bedding, hardwood floors, marble baths and Natura Bissé amenities. For couples celebrating an extra special event, opt for one of the suites decorated with vintage flair, some with canopy beds and eye-catching wallpaper patterns.

eye-catching wall art and prime location near many of Madrid's most family-friendly attractions make it a solid choice for kids of all ages. With complimentary strollers for the little ones, a stay here makes it easy to experience all that the city has to offer, like the Botanical Gardens, El Retiro Park and the Prado Museum.

At check-in, your youngest family members will immediately feel at home with a selection of toys from a collaboration with UNICEF and a dedicated play area to give parents a breather. Depending on the size of your brood, family rooms with bunk beds, cribs, extra beds, and multimedia devices are available to keep children entertained. At breakfast time, high chairs and special kid menus complete the hotel's kid-friendly initiative.

The Madrid Edition's design aesthetic embraces you from the moment you enter the dark oak-paneled reception area, where you're greeted by a magnificently sculpted spiral staircase, your guide to the sleek spaces awaiting inside. The 200 rooms, including 23 suites, are all dressed in fashionable white and cream, with backlit headboards inspired by the 18th-century baroque portal out front and glam elements like faux-fur throws and head-to-toe drapery.

The Lobby Bar, the nucleus of the hotel, is offset by a pool table made with a slab of white marble and a cobalt blue top, a U-shaped sofa, brass stools, three-tier ornament shelving, bespoke furnishings and a copper-tinted bar adorned with a caged bottle display. A pink-kissed corridor leads to the first of two restaurants, Jerónimo, where Mexican-inspired cuisine is served in four distinct settings. Design notables include a double-long green bar, canary yellow banquettes, and specially designed light fixtures. The rooftop houses Oroya, a Peruvian fusion restaurant housed in a gorgeous vertical garden space boasting a shock of bold colors. The eatery leads to the wisteria-filled pergola pisco bar terrace and the double-size swimming pool with in-water loungers and majestic sunset views.

Michelin-star Deessa

Location: Retiro BETA

Situated in Madrid's tony Golden Triangle of Art, home to the famed Prado, Reina Sofia, and Thyssen-Bornemisza museums and just a short jaunt to El Retiro Park, the Mandarin Oriental Ritz, Madrid seamlessly displays all the glitz and glamour that typifies the Belle Epoque era. All 100 rooms and 53 suites ooze sophistication with leather headboards, white marble bathrooms, ultra-comfort beds, a maxi bar and a neutral color palette. The spa continues the opulence with indoor swimming and vitality pools surrounded by wall-to-wall marble and striking chandeliers.

The on-site dining, all conceptualized by Michelin-star chef Quique Dacosta and his team, is retro-fabulous, with dandy-dressed doormen and a grand reception area that leads to the glass-domed Palm court, where breakfast and afternoon tea are served alongside a Champagne bar serving first-rate bubbly and caviar. Pictura, the hotel's cocktail bar, pours drinks as creative as the space, a gold-hued salute to the Prado Museum, while the Ritz Garden offers paellas and barbecue in a verdant, relaxed setting. Deessa, the Michelin-star jewel of the epicurean crown, takes diners on a gourmet journey through Dacosta's signature creations. For a splurge-worthy, multi-sensory experience, don't miss the indulgent, three-hour Historic Menu with masterful plating so exquisite it's like eating works of art.

Classic in look and essence, the intimate 76-room The Principal Madrid welcomes guests in a multifunctional space designed for comfort and leisure. Built in 1917, the building is filled with artwork, furnishings, and knick-knacks that pay tribute to the turn-of-the-century architecture that inspired it. The color scheme—a fusion of muted greens, golds, taupes and splashes of red—alongside Ramón Freixa’s plush Ático restaurant and a private-use wellness suite add elegant touches of splendor.

The star of the show, however, is the grand rooftop terrace, offering arresting panoramic views over the city’s main thoroughfare and the Broadway of Madrid, Gran Via, and emblematic buildings Círculo de Bellas Artes and the Bank of Spain. Guests can opt for a traditional cocktail at the olive-tree-lined La Terraza or enjoy a bite at the bistro-inspired La Pérgola.

eccentric and sumptuous, with its maze of kooky sitting rooms packed with plush furnishings and offbeat décor (think: a faux rhino head and a suitcase wall). Bedrooms in this former 19th-century mansion are a touch more subdued, quietly echoing the grandeur of common areas with framed vintage Madrid maps, velvet headboards, geometric rugs and divine giraffe-print robes.

The unconventional feel continues with Asian-inspired massages at Thai Room, a 24-hour gym and the whimsically white Patio of Platos, a courtyard spot stacked with chinoiserie-print plate wall displays that triple as a lounge, dining area and event space. Meal options include Younique Restaurant Arts Club, serving inventive Mediterranean cuisine alongside a rotation of art exhibits and Celicioso, a “bakery” featuring gluten-free sweet and savory treats. For signature tipples and weekend entertainment, try the chic Padrino Cocktail Bar, while the 24-hour à la carte breakfast is always a good idea—dancing ’til dawn can work up quite the appetite, after all.

All-Star Amenities: 24-hour fitness room; premium guest experiences; breakfast at La Rotunda

What Not To Miss: Opera & Brunch Sundays

Location: Barrio de las Letras

Inaugurated in 1912, the Westin Palace exudes timeless elegance and grace. From the classical façade facing the mythical Neptune Fountain to the 17th-century tapestries in common areas to La Rotunda Restaurant's crystal chandelier hanging down from the ornate stained glass Art Nouveau cupola, guests here are transported to a world of regal sophistication. Typical Spanish bites are served with old-world flair in this storied setting and are accompanied by seasonal live opera performances on Sundays. For unwinding and socializing, the Museo Bar, styled after a typical British gentleman's club, serves all the classics in a wood-paneled space with posh seating in dark green leather.

The 470 rooms, of which 50 are suites, have been meticulously remodeled to celebrate the hotel's storied heritage and are bathed in ivory with period wallpaper art, bespoke furnishings, marble fireplaces and a pop of modern color. To feel like nobility in these opulent surroundings, book a private visit to the Thyssen-Bornemisza Museum, work out when it suits at the 24-hour fitness studio or order an ensuite wellness treatment by R'difusión.

Matisse and Virginia Woolf. The property's central location is steps from Ernest Hemingway's favorite haunts, as well as the popular Paseo del Arte. Then there's the décor, particularly the splendid LobByto Bar, a design marvel boasting Art Deco furnishings and a bronze-trimmed island bar with a hanging liquor cabinet. This generous space multitasks as a discreet guest check-in area, themed live music host, afternoon tea service and a weekend brunch hot spot. Guests and denizens can also stop by for traditional tapas and signature cocktails like El Retiro, a heady mix of vodka, limoncello, grenadine and vanilla syrup topped with lemon foam.

The 48 rooms are crisp, airy (some street facing) and modern, with sprinkles of snazzy 1920s deco detailing on walls, lamps and textile motifs. That period theme carries on to the cozy Le Max Wellness Club where visitors can freshen up with a Sisley facial or take in a jacuzzi soak while recalling the day's marvelous masterpieces.
